5.1 Guide to the Western Australian legislation review schedule

[Updated to 30 June 1998 from information supplied to the Council by the Western Australian Competition Policy Unit (CPU), 24 July 1998.]

Legislation review is a major program of National Competition Policy implementation in Western Australia. The State Government published a timetable for the review of legislation in June 1996 (the Clause 5 Legislation Review Table). Since June 1996, the WA Government has added over 20 Acts to its review program, where it has found a restriction on competition. The current timetable now lists about 270 Acts.

At 30 June 1998, some 44 reviews had been completed and endorsed by Cabinet Government Management Standing Committee (GMC) and subsequently by Cabinet. A further 39 reviews had at least reached the stage of having a draft report submitted to the CPU for comment. For about half of the Acts reviewed and endorsed by Cabinet, repeal or amendment to remove restrictions has been recommended and is being or is soon to be implemented.

In Western Australia, Ministers are responsible for review of legislation within their portfolios. The CPU coordinates and facilitates review processes by advising the people carrying out reviews on the process of reviews, how to do the reviews and the required standard for reviews. The CPU consults extensively with agencies and Ministerial offices to monitor progress and review standards. The CPU is also involved in ensuring the quality and rigour of reviews and the appropriateness of the review process. Where the CPU's examination indicates that draft reports are not up to standard, they are sent back to reviewers.

The CPU has been active in providing support to those conducting reviews or consultants who are contributing to the reviews. It published Legislation

Review Guidelines in April 1997. These guidelines provide a step-by-step guide to conducting legislation reviews.

The CPU has also conducted six introductory workshops on legislation review. These workshops involved a half-day of presentations on the steps of legislation review as well as practical exercises and discussion. Further introductory workshops will be held on an as-needs basis.

Workshops have also been held for review of specific legislation – that governing professions and occupational licensing and agreement Acts. Further specific workshops are also planned.

There have been some changes to Western Australia’s legislation review table. Reviews of some Acts were deferred where deferral could be justified, for example, where there is a need to coordinate the review with reviews of interdependent legislation or to coordinate a legislation review with the conduct of a related competitive neutrality review. Reviews have also been deferred where new legislation is about to be introduced and existing legislation is soon to be repealed. All deferrals have been considered with regard to the feasibility of reviews being completed and reform implemented by December 2000.

Western Australian Agreement Acts

In the course of the first assessment of Western Australia's NCP progress, the National Competition Council sought a commitment from the State Government to examine a small sample of its resource development agreement legislation to investigate the degree to which these Acts restrict competition. The Council nominated three resource development agreement Acts for review.

The Council acknowledged Western Australia's arguments that it would be appropriate for the State to conduct a review process targeted to the parties to those Acts and relevant Government agencies. Because agreement Acts are generally contractual arrangements between the government and private sector, the WA Government considers there is potential for considerable investor uncertainty flowing from review and the potential for amendment.

The three reviews have now been completed. The WA Government has advised the Council that the finding of the independent reviewer is that the Acts are generally pro-competitive and provide significant benefits to the State. These benefits arise from reductions in risk and transaction costs and do not come at the expense of either taxpayers or other businesses.

The reviews identified some provisions with anti-competitive effects, but considered that these are not significant. The reviews concluded that unilateral changes to State agreement Acts could incur extremely high 'sovereign risk' type costs, both in respect of the companies directly involved and, more generally, in respect of future dealings between the State and potential investors.

Ministers and agencies have been made aware that all new agreement legislation must be examined for anti-competitive effects, and that provisions should not have a negative impact on competition unless a net public benefit can be demonstrated.

Western Australia's agreement legislation is listed below. The Acts marked with a * were listed in the original June 1996 review timetable. Of these, the review of the North West Gas Development (Woodside) Agreement Amendment Act 1994 is currently being finalised. Eight other (non-resource) agreement Acts, marked with an #, have been added to the Legislation Review Table for review in 1999.

The Iron Ore (Dampier Mining Company Limited) Agreement Act 1969 was repealed in 1997 and five other resource development agreement Acts are scheduled for repeal in 1998. A further four Acts have been identified for possible repeal.
